Current Mention.

THE attention of old subscribers and those whom we hope will become new subscribers to THE WATCHMAN is directed to the premium offers on the first page of this paper.

We have been flooded with local correspondence this week. Our hearty thanks are given to our friends who have thus remembered us. If their communications are somewhat reduced, they will understand it is from a necessity imposed by having several columns more of matter than we can get into even our enlarged paper.

MR. WRIGHT is to preach in Wrightsville next Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

If you like THE WATCHMAN, please show it to your neighbors and invite them to try it.

K, Bennington, 21; 1st Separate Co., Newport, 29; Light Battery, Brattleboro, June 27.

WE have been so much gratified by some encouraging words recently received that we venture to give two or three examples. One valued subscriber says: "I consider your paper the best in the state and I will help it all I can." Another friend writes: "I cannot find another paper that comes quite so near my ideal." We hope the day may be far distant when our friends will not entertain the same good opinion of their weekly visitor.

BEGINNING with Monday of this week the Central Vermont conductors and train men—passenger and freight—will run from St. Albans to Montreal, instead of stopping at St. Johns as heretofore. The current item to the effect that they would run from Boston to Montreal without change is incorrect. The usual change will be made at St. Albans, and for the present two Grand Trunk engines will run to St. Albans in charge of Central Vermont men.

TWO clergymen, one a Universalist, the other of the Congregational faith, recently placed their similar looking valises near together in the station at West Randolph. On the arrival of the train, the Congregationalist seized the wrong valise and started off with it, but the mistake was seen by the Universalist brother and an exchange made. The result, if the error had not been rectified and they had delivered each the other's sermon, we leave our readers to imagine.

THE Tunbridge correspondent of an exchange reports that a headstone furnished by the government was recently erected at the grave of J. W. Marston, by some soldiers of the last war, permission being given by a woman claiming to be his nearest relative. Within half an hour after the stone was set, this woman tore it up and, after defacing it and dragging it away, piled a lot of rubbish on the grave. It would seem that the law might be invoked to punish such an outrage.

IN reply to our item that A. P. Childs was not to leave the state that invertebrate punster says in the Reformer: "Our Montpelier contemporary may watch-a-man first-rate, but it don't watch a Child with a cent. It is safe to say that the item is quite liable to be very inaccurate. Our esteemed co-scribers should conciliate themselves with the fact that probably Mr. Childs will never again be a candidate for any office, big or little, in Vermont, though this consolation should be saddened with the fearful tidings that Mr. Childs may be 'uncomfortably near' when others are elected to office or defeated."

GENERAL W. W. LYDNE in the Reformer shows that there was an excess in the state tax collected in Brattleboro for the years 1883 and 1884 over the tax levied, which with interest amounts to $3,783.18. It is alleged that discrepancies and errors exist in all the subsequent years, except two, down to 1883, but that the amount will be does not appear. A small part of the deficiency may be accounted for by statements and uncollected taxes. Collector Herrick is unable to see how there can be any deficiency. If he owes the town any money, he says he is anxious to pay it, and asks that the entire matter be thoroughly investigated by competent men.

THE Dwight-Wiman club of New York and Toronto, Ontario, with guests, drove up the valley from Greenfield, Mass., last week, in an old-time Concord coach, zig-zagging their way through Vermont and New Hampshire towns along the river. At West Randolph they were recipients of the bountiful hospitality of W. H. DuBois. Monday evening as they drove up to the Pavilion, in this village, the unusual spectacle attracted much attention. The club consists of gentlemen connected with the telegraph and other branches of business. One year they go to Europe, another to the interior of Canada and again to some other point. They show good judgment in coming to Vermont in June, and they expressed great delight with the scenery of the state. From Montpelier they went to Burlington.

M. J. FRANCISCO, secretary of the Vermont Accident Association, makes the following explanation in regard to the case of William Smith of Victory—the statement of which in a recent issue of THE WATCHMAN was taken from a Caledonia county paper: "William Smith of Victory was insured June 23, 1882, paid the advance payment, put in a claim for injury July 12, and laid off until it amounted to $20 65. We deducted $2 dues which he was owing us and one assessment then due of $2 80, and paid him $21 85 on the 13th day of September, 1882. He never paid a cent after that up to the time he was killed in January, 1883. The assessment had run the thirty days, the policy had lapsed and had been marked off the books before he was killed. He refused to pay the assessment we made to pay others and now Mr. May wants us to assess those whom he refused to help, to pay his claim when his policy had lapsed by his own act and no one to blame but himself."

AN accident in the copper mine at Ely last week Thursday resulted in the death of one man, an Englishman named Pope. A piece of rock weighing some five hundred pounds fell from the roof upon the track or tramway and slid down one hundred and fifty feet, gathering force and speed as it went. Three men were coming up at the time, and, hearing the noise, supposed it to be a runaway car and jumped aside, two on one side and one on the other. The rock left the track at that point and struck Mr. Pope on the legs just above the knees, cutting one leg off entirely except a piece of flesh on one side and breaking the other leg. He was brought out as soon as possible and taken home, but died shortly after. The shock was so great that although fully conscious, he did not suffer greatly and did not realize the fatal character of his injuries. He was an estimable young man and a devoted Christian, and had been married but a few months. The funeral took place at West Fairlee on Sunday, and was attended by the Odd Fellows, of which order he was a member.

THE Boston Journal prints the following statistics in relation to the Central Vermont system of railways: "The Vermont Central and Vermont & Canada roads proper comprise 187 miles of main line, the leased lines bringing the Central Vermont system up to 410 miles. The so-called trust roads have 110 locomotives and 2,333 cars. The gross earnings of the roads in 1881 were $2,662,518 61, the net earnings being $645,688 49. For the two years ending with 1880 the gross earnings were $4,320,978 67 and the net earnings $1,220,625 27. From 1870 to 1880 the gross earnings aggregated $25,000,000 and the net earnings over $8,000,000, making the annual gross earnings $2,000,000 and the net earnings $775,000 on an average. Deducing the amount paid on leased lines per annum—about $300,000—we find a balance of $425,000 as the average net earnings of the roads since 1870, and which can now be applied on the same basis of earnings on the payment of the interest on the new $7,000,000 of bonds of the Consolidated Railway of Vermont, and which is now a fixed charge of $300,000 on the consolidated roads."

AND now A. J. Willard, Esq., like an unnatural monster, is breathing out "uncalled-for abuse" on St. Johnsbury, himself a citizen of that town. He wants the listers to answer some such conundrums as these: Why was not $15,000 of real estate owned by the First National bank appraised and set in the list, and why not a similar amount owned by the Merchants National? Why was stock of the former, worth not less than $115, and of the latter worth $112, appraised at par? Why was Montpelier bank stock owned in St. Johnsbury and which cannot be purchased for less than fifty per cent advance, appraised at par? Why was corporate property valued at and paying good dividends on $3,500,000, appraised at less than a million? These and other puzzling things "Jack" asks to have explained. Now, Brother Stone, as the only source of "reliable" information, come out from under the bed, show "the spirit of a man" and put to shame this pestiferous Willard, the unreliable Chase and the Irreverent Harris, all of whom are singing the same old tune about the listing matters of certain interests whose champion you are supposed to be. The "inimicality" squeal is losing credit. And while you are about it, explain how it can be that St. Johnsbury with nearly five times the area and double the population, with its rich farming lands and many wealthy citizens, has a valuation only about $200,000 larger than Montpelier. Here are the figures in regard to St. Johnsbury's valuation taken from the Caledonian: Total real estate, $1,324,108; total personal property, $1,128,023; total valuation, $2,452,131. The corresponding items for Montpelier are: Real estate, $1,305,924; personal, $1,488,105; total, $2,834,110. Montpelier's personal estate is more than $350,000 larger than St. Johnsbury's. There are no material conditions to explain such a wide discrepancy. These things give color to the allegations of incapacity or dishonesty against the listers of your town. THE WATCHMAN called you out about a year ago on a similar showing and did not get any very definite answer. The town has made a little improvement since that time, but still there is room.
